

Premium Membership would allow developer to create functions to give people who are membership owners discounts. Since it is an FK to Customer, you can pull that information in Order where the dollar amounts are finalized

I used a similar set up as the classwork today based on the idea of having this be for buying tickets online rather than in person.

We have a cart where the user is able to keep track of the quantity of tickets and concessions at the same time. The movie tickets themselves are based on the specific movie time the movie is playing so each unique ticket ID has a specific movie and time.

The cost of the movie tickets is also based on the movie time due to matinee versus regular movie show times.